

MASTER OF PUBLIC HEALTH

Web Site: <https://twu.edu/health-studies/graduate-programs/master-of-public-health/>

The Master of Public Health (MPH) degree is designed to prepare high-quality public health professionals to integrate knowledge and skills, critique research, and appraise leadership and advocacy to effect positive and sustainable change in improving population health in rural environments. Upon completion of the program, students will be able to:

- a. Appropriately integrate knowledge and skills to appraise evidence-based approaches to public health.
- b. Effectively critique research for assessment, planning, and management of policy and programs to promote health.
- c. Appropriately appraise principles of leadership, governance, and management to foster collaborations, coalitions, and partnerships to advocate for health improvement of diverse populations.